TIME

Time has always been there. It was the beginning, And it shall be the end. It is forever changing, never the same as it was before. It was a minute here, A century there. It saw the creation of everything, And it saw the destruction of much. It is a universal and eternal entity. We regret when we waste it. We wish we had more when it runs out. Yet when we do have it, we don't use it wisely. It'll march on, Continuing long after we're gone.
